Dear Friends,

"My Dad can beat up your Dad!" Little boys taunt their classmates with boasts like this. Silly, I suppose, but it is an indication of how boys value their fathers. Dad is strong and powerful, whereas the child often enough sees himself as weak. If the child believes in the father's strength, goodness and caring, then they have no worries. Standing next to Dad makes any little boy or girl feel more safe and secure.

The disciples on the storm tossed lake feel their powerlessness in the face of the forces of nature. They cry out in astonishment, "Don't you even care about us? We're going to drown!" Jesus is amazed that after all the time they have spent with Him, all the miracles they have seen Him perform, they still question His goodness and power. "Do you not yet have faith?"

As we grow older, we realize that our fathers weren't perfect. They had their faults and limitations, yet we loved them because they were our fathers. If that is undoubtedly so, how much more so must we love and trust our Eternal Father in heaven? Fathers' Day is set aside to do what we do all to rarely: to thank our fathers. As we do so, let us also thank our Father in Heaven, whose strength and power, whose mercy and love, never cease.

Pace e Bene,
